See Pinned Location

WHAT IT IS

A visual trend of a person pinning a location on a map, then the video transitions to them going there IRL for a shoot.

Fast-paced, fun, and dynamic.

WHY IT'S WORKING

Fun way to feature locations: show the spot on the map so viewers know where it is, then reveal the place with the subject there to keep them engaged.

For brands, it's a clear, eye-catching format to showcase their venues.

USE IT FOR

Showing real-world locations in a clear, engaging way — perfect for travel, lifestyle, food, and hospitality brands with venues.

@edasansel

Now You See Me – Wait, What?

WHAT IT IS:

A visual trend that shows a person leaning on a streetlight, then walking to the left of it — only to reveal someone else, or the same person in a completely different look.

WHY IT'S WORKING

Easy to edit and a fun way to introduce an outfit change or new subject. For brands, you can use this to showcase new product launches or menu items with a visual flare.

USE IT FOR

New product launches, menu reveals, outfit changes, or new subjects.

Me Without, Me With

WHAT IT IS:

A visual trend that captures a person's source of everyday needs or joys they cannot live without.

WHY IT'S WORKING

Everyone has something they need to get through the day — coffee, their phone, a comfort plushie. This trend allows subjects to present their personalities or pockets of joy that keep them going.

USE IT FOR

Featuring menu items — ask a customer or employee to hold the menu item then, film them with this trend format.

CREATOR'S
pov

why they keep winning

@jasminseats turned her car into a viral studio for no-BS food reviews. Here's how she did it.

FORMAT USED

Car mukbang/food review

HOOK TEXT

“Trying Hawaiian Food
I’ve Never Eaten Before!”

VISUAL TREATMENT

Fast-paced, creator-led talking head review of featured food from restaurants

@jasminseats

WHAT EVERYONE THINKS MADE IT GO VIRAL

Her videos are repeatable and easy to remember. She mentions everything you need to know about the restaurant within three seconds — niche, name, and location.

@jasminseats

THE REAL REASON

Rapid-fire, fast-cut reviews with high value: repeatable hook, straightforward tasting, instant payoff by scoring the food for quick-hit reviews.

@jasminseats

HOOK FORMULA

Visual Hook: Fast cuts of her tasting everything she tried

Auditory Hook: “Today team, we’re trying [food niche] from [establishment name], [location].”

AUDIENCE TRUST MECHANISM

Instant pay-off. Doesn’t overelaborate her reviews — she presents, tries, and gives her rating of each food item. A simple, strong, repeatable, and scalable format.

@jasminseats

STRUCTURAL DEVICE

1. Hook
2. Food reveal
3. Short review
4. Score

POSTING RHYTHM

Every other day

BRAND SIGNAL

Raw, on-the-go food truth.
Her car is her studio, the food is her script, and the truth is her edge. No BS.
Just the truth.

@jasminseats

WHAT YOU CAN TAKE FROM THIS

If you're a creator, no-BS verdicts, global eats, and mobile spontaneity drive millions of views.

If you're a brand, unpolished reviews > overkill praises. Partner with creators who provide raw, mobile delivery and unfiltered trust.

THE ONE THING MOST PEOPLE MISS

Short takeaway: Constraints and simplicity breed authenticity.

Truthful, rapid-fire reviews outperform overpolished content from studios - keep it raw, urgent, real.

The Only 4 Hook Types You Need to Stop the Scroll

Text Hooks

WHAT IT IS

A bold text overlay in the first 1–2 seconds of your reel. 85% of viewers watch on mute — this is the line that makes them stay.

WHY IT'S WORKING

The best text hooks use contradiction, specificity, or a direct challenge to create a curiosity gap. Generic is invisible — specific stops thumbs

USE IT FOR

Talking-head content, creator tips, educational reels, behind-the-scenes.

@leplaisirpune

Visual Rehooks

WHAT IT IS

A visual pattern interrupt placed mid-reel to re-grab attention. A quick zoom, a scene cut, a before-and-after reveal — your second hook.

WHY IT'S WORKING

Attention dips between seconds 3–5. A visual rehook creates a second moment of surprise that signals to the algorithm your content holds attention.

USE IT FOR

Product reveals,
food plating sequences,
venue walkthroughs,
outfit changes.

@kqsocial

Sound Effects Hooks

WHAT IT IS

An audio cue in the first 1–3 seconds that creates a pattern interrupt — a trending sound, a dramatic bass drop, or a satisfying “ding.”

WHY IT’S WORKING

Trending audio still gets pushed by the algorithm. But the real play is using sound as structure — it signals something is about to happen.

USE IT FOR

Menu reveals, transformation reels, anything with “before and after” energy. Match the sound to the emotion.

@safiie.bulhak

Combo Hooks

WHAT IT IS

The full stack — text overlay + visual interrupt + audio cue + voiceover, all in the first 2 seconds.

Four entry points, one hook.

WHY IT'S WORKING

Covers every scenario: muted, sound on, distracted, or focused. The algorithm rewards watch time — combo hooks lock viewers in.

USE IT FOR

High-value educational content, brand campaign hero reels, viral-intent content.

This is for your best content — not every reel.

The Arrival Shot

1. The exterior - signage, entrance, any street presence.
2. The first impression walking in - film as if you're the customer.
3. The ambient detail - a light fitting, a wall feature, a table arrangement.
4. The team - candid, not posed or scripted.

@jubilee_eats

The Food & Drinks Shot

1. The hero dish being plated - from above, close-up shot.
2. The first cut or first pour - the movement matters.
3. The texture detail - the crumb, the foam, the cream, the glaze.
4. Someone reacting to the food - can be you or your companion - the moment of the first taste should be candid.

@placesinsydney

The Story Shots

1. The quiet corner - an empty seat that feels like an invitation.

2. The staff in flow - working, not performing for the camera.

3. The full house - the energy of a good service day.

4. The last shot - something that leaves a lasting impression as you leave the restaurant.
